DEFENSES ON OAHU ISLAND HAVE BEEN GREATLY INCREASED

Thought Sufficient To An-hiliate Seaborne Force Attempting Landing

PERMIT INSPECTION

During The Past 10½ Weeks
Soldiers Have Been Concealing Fortifications

By Richard Haller
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HONOLULU, Feb. 18 — (INS) — Strong Oahu Island defenses, speedily prepared since December 7th, are now believed strong enough to annihilate any enemy seaborne force which might attempt a landing.

Power of the defenses which have sprung up since the Jap "sneak raid" on Pearl Harbor was revealed today when the Army authorities permitted correspondents to make a detailed inspection of the defense work done since commencement of the Pacific conflict.

On December 7th, virtually no underground protection existed. But during the intervening ten and a half weeks soldiers stationed on Oahu have spent their time like moles, burrowing in the ground and strengthening and concealing the defense fortifications.

We drove 40 miles along the shore, scarcely able to see the concealed defense works. Then we back-tracked, and the commanding officers revealed the hidden fortifications. First we saw a shore battery of 75 mm. guns skillfully hidden amid the hills, capable of concentrated crossfire and able to rake the area 400 yards from shore where a landing might be attempted.

Then we saw heavier caliber guns

LATEST WAR BULLETINS

2,208 Americans Believed Held As War Prisoners

Washington—A list of 2,208 Americans, all believed held as prisoners of war by Japan, was made public today by the Navy Department.

Official circles in Washington, meanwhile, probed the possibility of securing release of the incarcerated group which included 1,008 officers and enlisted men of the Navy and Marine Corps, and 1,200 civilians. Authorities said the chances that the prisoners can be immediately freed are remote.

First mass number of United States citizens officially acknowledged to be in enemy hands, the group includes much of the Marine Corps and Navy personnel who were stationed in China and who manned America's Pacific outposts when Japan made its treacherous attack last December 7th. Among them are many of the heroic defenders of Wake and Guam Islands as well as the civilians employed in construction of defense works at those points.

Foreign Troops Arrive in Java

Batavia—Foreign troops, including a relatively small number of Americans, have arrived in Java to assist in defense of the island stronghold, the official Net news agency Aneta announced today.

The foreign forces have received a hearty welcome from the entire population. Aneta said, but authoritative quarters were noted as saying that "their numbers are by no means large enough, yet."

"Nevertheless," these sources said, "their arrival serves as indication that the Netherlands Indies do not fight alone."

Claim "Japs" Plan To Use Flame Throwers

Washington—Revealing that the Japanese are preparing to use flame-throwers in the battle of Bataan, Gen. Douglas MacArthur today reported a regrouping of Japanese troops as a signal for resumption of the land offensive against the defenders.

In a communique, the War Department disclosed that enemy batteries from the Cavite shore are increasing the intensity of their siege of American forts in Manila Bay apparently in the opening act of the long-awaited assault by the Nipponese.

Violent Fighting On Leningrad Front

New York—The most violent fighting of recent months is now taking place on the Leningrad front, the British radio announced today, quoting a broadcast by the Berlin radio.

The British radio, heard in New York by CBS, declared: "Berlin radio today admitted heavy pressure against the German troops encircling Leningrad. It is said that Soviet forces carried out an attack of particular ferocity yesterday after careful and extensive air bombardment."

"The battle is still in progress," Berlin radio, describing the fighting as the most violent since the opening of the present Russian offensive, said the Russians employed tanks of the heaviest type."

DOYLESTOWN ADOPTS TAX RATE FOR YEAR

Budget of $99,150 for 1942
Calls for Tax Rate of 12 Mills

OFFICER IS GIVEN RAISE

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 19 — Doylestown borough's budget of $99,150 for 1942 was adopted at the February meeting of Council and the tax rate for the year was fixed at 12 mills, the same as last year.

The tax rate is split up three ways, 5½ mills for general purposes, 6 mills for debt purposes, and a half-mill for fire purposes.

The borough also directed by resolution the immediate formation of a civil service commission of three members whose duty it will be to hire any future new members of the Doylestown borough police force. The commission also will have the power to discharge in cases of incompetency in office or for other infractions of the police regulations.

The civil service requirement passed by the State Legislature went into operation several months ago in many other communities. Council President George F. Smith informed his associates that the new commission will be appointed at the March meeting. The law calls for one member of the commission to be a member of Council, and the other two are to be selected from laymen in the community.

Two Bomb Experts To Give Demonstrations

Tonight two experts from the Philadelphia Police Department will give instructions on "How To Handle and How Not To Handle Bombs." The emergency police, air wardens, firemen and others who are interested are invited to attend.

The meeting is to be held in the high school "gym" and will begin at eight o'clock.

A practical demonstration of how to handle some types of bombs will be given by the two men, and the meeting is anticipated to be one of the most interesting ever held here.

Two bombs arrived here this morning which will be used in the demonstration. The talk and demonstrations will deal principally with incendiary bombs.

RAPS LACK OF EFFORT

LONDON, Feb. 19—(INS)—The British Empire can rise to new heights of influence and glory if the people remain true to their traditions, but otherwise it can fall, Capt. David Margesson, Secretary of State for War, told the House of Commons in a full review of the military situation today.

Criticizing the lack of 100 per cent effort by the people of Britain, Margesson said:

"We have had grievous defeats and we stand in gravest danger."

"Is this the end, or only the beginning of a new period of influence and glory?"

"It can be the former if we are untrue to our traditions and our duties."

It can be the latter if we deserve and work for it."

CRIMINAL COURT ENDS FEB. TERM; CASES ARE HEARD

Peter Azzinaro, Trenton, Is Ordered To Pay Costs
In Case

SUFFERED BROKEN JAW

Court Tells Jury It Has No Fault To Find With
The Verdict

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 19—Twenty-year-old Peter Azzinaro, of 1034 South Broad street, Trenton, N. J., "caught it on the rebound," Tuesday, in Bucks county criminal court, when a jury placed the costs on him as prosecutor in a charge against Jules Sabo, 30, of Morrisville.

Azzinaro not only got a broken jaw out of his rather painful experience, but it was followed up with $48.44 costs when the jury acquitted the defendant Sabo.

"You got yourself into a jam and got the worst of it, with a broken jaw, and now you have another dose," Judge Hiram H. Keller told Azzinaro as he appeared before the court for sentence to pay the costs.

Azzinaro, who denied that he was a fighter in the ring, or that he trained in a Trenton gymnasium, got into an altercation with Sabo while working at a Morrisville rubber factory on November 5th, last year. An argument started and both men accepted an offer to "come outside and settle it."

One Man's Opinion

By WALTER KIERNAN

(I. N. S. Staff Writer)

A rumor factory with night club exposure and leaking tongues in every room has been discovered in Washington.

The seat of government is running off at the mouth.

The only solution is to put all government workers in the cabinet.

Cabinet members must now submit their well-rounded phrases to Arch McLeish and nothing drips through that has not been checked against the Federal cook book.

A Cabinet member no longer is permitted to pull off a double-play ball unassisted.

Our rumor factory is the largest in the world and pays no taxes on its sales of expanding yarns.

By contrast, the Chrysler Corporation paid almost 67 million dollars in taxes last year.

Laid end to end, 67 million dollars would make a nice cross-continent yapp-trap for Bush League critics of big business.

Thought for the day: No priorities for pickled tongue.

OWNERSHIP DISPUTE IS THROWN OUT OF COURT IN VEISZ TRIAL

Larceny Charge Not Sustained, Rules Judge Calvin
S. Boyer

NO EVIDENCE OF THEFT

Trial Due To Dispute Over
Estate of Mrs. Reba
Barnhill

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 19—The larceny charge was not sustained in the trial of Joseph N. Veisz, near Emille, according to Judge Calvin S. Boyer and Judge Boyer directed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty of larceny and receiving stolen goods.

"As this trial progressed the evidence tended to show that there was a dispute about the ownership of the goods involved and criminal cases can not be brought for the purpose of trying to determine the title of the goods," Judge Boyer ruled.

"There is not sufficient evidence to indicate that the defendant took the goods with the intention of using them and also depriving the owner of converting them to his own use or destroying them. The Commonwealth has to prove that the defendant feloniously took the goods of the prosecution," the Court said.

The prosecutor was Henry M. Taylor, 1257 Radcliffe street, Bristol, who charged the defendant, Joseph N.

REPLY TO WORRIERS

What is probably the greatest crop of persistent worriers that the world has ever seen is being produced by the current decade. The questions that many of them frequently ask, when in a dark mood, reveal concern over the financial aspects of the period. Bluntly, they are: "Where is the money coming from to pay for all these wars?" and
"Won't the whole world be bankrupt after the war?"

Solace for these worriers may be found in the report recently submitted to the Twentieth Century Fund
by Stuart Chase, economic writer, who asserts that money is losing its leadership to materials in "the new economy," and that "no nation in this dangerous world of 1942 is nearly going to go bankrupt because some textbooks say it ought to." He declares that "it will go physically bankrupt when it runs out of food, coal, iron, oil, aluminum, and not before."

In backing up his statement that materials have displaced money as a thing of primary importance, Mr.
Chase says that as the American economy becomes increasingly distorted from its accustomed pattern under the shattering impact of prodigious wartime production, now planned, all the wealth of Croesus will not buy a pound of aluminum when there is no aluminum available. "Hitherto," he asserts, "one could always get what he wanted if he was prepared to pay the price.
From now on, price will become a secondary matter as commodity after commodity goes under priority and rationing control."

"For many years such perspective has been blurred by a capacity to produce far in excess of normal demand, with the result that people came to think that purchasing power, as expressed in terms of money, was the prime consideration."

"Now we are in a period where the amount of steel, copper, aluminum, raw silk, lead, zinc, kilowatts of energy, appear as the prime considerations—which, of course, they are, and always have been."

In the new economy, he says, no nation will permit bankruptcy as long as men, materials and energy are available. In fact, he predicts that the highest standard of living the United States has ever known would result from carrying over to peacetime the war's full employment of manpower and material resources.

Mr. Chase did not say how this could be brought about under a democratic system of government. But he explains in part how Germany developed its fabulously great war machine. Men and materials were utilized to the fullest extent possible, as well as barter and questionable marks.

Mr. Chase's remarks are submitted merely for the benefit of those who persist in asking whether the world is not going to go bankrupt.

It is predicted that hotels will soon start charging for soap, but when they start charging for towels they will be really plugging the leaks.

At that, subjects of the Axis would be glad to have some American coffee without sugar in it. Axis coffee has no coffee in it.

China announces it is poised for an offensive, and none too soon.

MATA HARI'S Daughter

SYNOPSIS

Sir John Sanderson, British Intelligence chief, has learned that Mara, his ace woman agent, has betrayed important secrets to the elusive Ajax, head of the Nazi spies in England. His aide, Capt. Hugh Kenley, also reported that a parachutist landed near London and vanished in an unknown girl's car. Sir John realized that Mara's treason makes his official position desperate. He must resign or... As he gripped his pistol, a familiar voice outside his residential office interrupted. He slipped the weapon back into a drawer when greeting his ward, beautiful Brinda Duncan, who pleads with him for war service as a spy. He is strongly opposed to this, but evades the issue. Suddenly two shots were heard from the street, and Orderly Hunt announced that Captain Kenley had been murdered. Agent Donovan, on guard duty, describes the fugitive killer as "a big fellow with a limp" who "got out of Miss Brinda's car." Sir John tried to question Kenley, who managed to whisper a few words. Brinda told Sir John how she had given a lift to "a poor fellow with a sprained ankle." He looked and talked like an Englishman." She is directed to try and "pick him out" in the official "spy gallery" later. Brinda then receives a mysterious "phone warning." "What happened to Mara? ... Silence, or—death." ... Later, Brinda was going through Intelligence photos when Sir John introduced her to Lieut. Richard Malden, who just previously had told "Sandy" of a bombing attempt, that morning, on the former's laboratory in which Dick was making some vital war experiments. Brinda and Dick recognize each other as former school-day sweethearts.

CHAPTER SIX

"Good Lord!" The young lieutenant eyed her with amazed respect. "You've certainly come on!" Brinda returned his look with interest.

"So have you—Lieutenant Malden."

"But you're really a knockout, Brinda..." My word, how long ago was it?"

"It was six years," said Brinda, her eyes dancing. "To be exact, six years lacking three months. I was sixteen and you were—"

"Nineteen, I guess," supplied Malden.

"You were very bright, I seem to recall, and not bad looking either. All we girls at Miss Cartwright's were gone on you."

Malden's face turned slightly red. "Don't rag a fellow. You know they weren't. I mean nobody was."

"I was," said Brinda, looking him full in the eyes.

"Oh! What do you mean?"

"You know very well I was crazy about you, Dick Malden," responded Brinda. "But you were simply impossible. Such a wretched boy! Always making dates and breaking them, then coming around with some story about being busy in the physics laboratory."

Malden frowned. "Well, that was true. I was trying for the Carver scholarship. Maybe I was a little absent-minded."

"It wasn't that," and there was a quiver of remembered hurt in Brinda's voice as she went on, "I didn't mind your being absent-minded—when it was your studies. Dick. But the last time, the time you broke your last date with me, it wasn't your studies. Do you remember, Dick—it was a dance at Eton Hall."

"It was?" Malden looked immensely puzzled. "A dance! Now what could have kept me from going to a dance with you?"

"It was another girl, if I must tell you."

"No!"

"Yes, another girl. You see, I have a better memory than you, Dick. I could even tell you her name. But don't look so distressed. All that is ages ago, and I'm really not in love with you now. You went to America, didn't you?"

"Yes, yes. Quite." Malden was obviously relieved at the new trend in the conversation. "They're jolly good technical schools there... and then the pater made me come back."

and go in the Navy. Said there was a war coming—and the old fellow was right, by Jove! But what have you been doing besides getting to be a raving beauty? I mean, what are you doing here? You're not in Intelligence by any chance?"

"Don't you remember?"

"Of course. You're Sir John's niece, or something of the sort. I'd almost forgotten."

"That's characteristic," said Brinda. Uneasy under the steady stare of his intent gray-green eyes, she moved a step away. Her arm brushed a file of the indexed photos and it fell to the floor.

"Oh!"

Together she and Malden bent to pick up the scattered cards. As they rose, Brinda found her face close to the tanned countenance of the Naval officer. Suddenly a firm strong hand closed on her arm.

"Brinda, I didn't forget! It was something else. I was a fool."

"I don't even know whom Gladys is going to marry..." "Allow me to present him... Richard Malden, at your service."

For a moment, Brinda swayed toward him. Then she pulled her arm away.

"Nonsense, Dick," she said briskly. "It's all too long ago to make any difference. We were only school children anyway... Here, help me straighten these cards."

"Oh, very well," with a disgruntled air, he complied.

Watching him from the corner of her eyes, Brinda realized that the years had made him even more attractive than the Dick Malden of her school days. He still had a slightly professional look, due to an austere profile, a high forehead and a granite chin. But the mouth was sensitive and the chin was relieved by something very like a boyish dimple. She remembered how that blend of adult competence in juvenile naivete had appealed to her in the days when she was attending the fashionable Cartwright Academy and Dick was an undergraduate at one of England's famous public schools in the next town.

She winced recalling it—wincing, too, at the remembrance of that night of disillusionment when she had discovered the real reason for Dick's failing to keep that engagement, which in those days had seemed so overwhelmingly important. She had pictured him that summer night as bending over charts and blueprints in a physics laboratory. Instead, he was at the dance with her schoolmate, the beautiful Lady Gladys Mountwyn, heiress to the Mountwyn steel millions... The daughter of the same Lord Mountwyn who had figured in the recent scene attending Kenley's murder.

Apparently Malden had been doing some speculating too, for he suddenly asked her: "Are you working with Sir John in Intelligence, Brinda? Or if not, just what are you doing here?"

Some instinct cautioned Brinda to guard her words. "Talking to you mostly, it seems," she smiled. "And you?"

"I?" His face was as disarmingly ingenuous as the face of the 19-year-old Dick Malden of by-gone days. "I'm looking for a chap who tried to blow me up."

"Blow you up? How unkind!"

"Rather. And he came precious near doing it too." There was a note of grievous anger in Malden's voice. "I caught a glimpse of the duffer and I'm trusting I'll find his picture in here."

"But why would anyone want to blow you up?"

"Well, strictly speaking, the chap wasn't after me but my laboratory. My invention, you know. No doubt Sir John has told you all about it."

Brinda smiled enigmatically. Until the last twenty-four hours, she could not recall Sir John as having told her anything about the inner workings of the British Intelligence Office.

"You mean—?"

He was wholly unsuspicious. "The Z-Ray," he said. "It's an amazing affair, if we can only handle it. So naturally it wouldn't do to have the place dynamited right now."

A voice interrupted from the doorway—one of Sir John's secretaries. "Lieutenant Malden! Lord Mountwyn just called. He asks you to remember you have a rather important engagement at his home tonight."

Abruptly Brinda turned.

"Dick, it doesn't happen to be Lord Mountwyn's that you're visiting tonight?"

"Why, yes!"

"Then I'll see you again soon."

"You'll be there?" Malden's expression was unreadable.

"Yes, I scarcely ever see Gladys any more, but Sandy—Sir John—wants me to go. He and Lord Mountwyn have some business, I think."

"Ripping! I'll be waiting to welcome you." But the tone was not as hearty as the words.

Brinda looked at him wide-eyed, an uneasy premonition forming in her mind... But that would be impossible... The rich, ambitious Lady Gladys... Dick, the young scion of the ancient but notoriously impetuous Malden family... She made the plunge.

"Isn't it shameful? It's an engagement party and I don't even know whom Gladys is going to marry. You do, of course?"

Malden bowed.

"Allow me to present him: Richard Malden... At your service..."

Brinda mustered her brightest smile. But there was no joy in her heart—only sudden desolation and slow creeping anger.

Partnership Dispute is Thrown Out of Court in Veisz Trial

A son-in-law of the decedent, taking $375 worth of furniture and farm machinery from the Barnhill farm on the Fallington-Emille road, after 18, 1941.

During the trial it was revealed that Barnhill, who died in 1933, left of her estate to the prosecutor, Mrs. M. Taylor, who was living at widow's home at the time of her death.

The estate proved involunt with the option of the personal property of widow, Reba Barnhill. It was also testified that E. P. Leeper bought the Barnhill farm October 15, 1941.

Further evidence revealed that Mrs. Veisz, the wife of the defendant, was a daughter of the widow, Barnhill, who died the prosecutor one-half beneficiary of her estate shortly before her death.

Mrs. Susan Jadlocki, Bristol, R. D. who was a witness for the Commonwealth, testified she saw the defendant, Veisz, with household goods and machinery in a truck along the road in front of her farm.

Mrs. Barnhill in her will directed that I should receive a portion of each year and shrub on the Barnhill farm, when I asked Mrs. Veisz for my share, according to her mother's will, husband ordered me off the place, said they didn't wish to associate with such people," Mrs. Jadlocki testified.

I never did get my share of the shrubs and shrubs Barnhill had planted in her will," said the one neighbor of the defendant.

Other witnesses included Walter H. 152 Bloomsbury street, and Joseph Beatty, 65 Decatur street, both of Bristol, N. J., who testified they helped haul away some farm machinery and furniture on October 18, 1941.

The prosecutor, tall and 74-years-old, severely cross-examined by defense counsel, Webster S. Achey, testified that he was a total stranger when he moved into the Barnhill home to be named one of the heirs in the will some time later.

Dr. E. Boyle, well-known Allentown attorney, will speak on "Americanism on Watch." The Rev. Dr. Mark Heller will serve as the chaplain, and Mrs. Clyde R. Flory, Sellersville clubwoman, will be at the piano. Jacob Erdman Cope, also of Sellersville, delegate-at-large of the Pennsylvania State Society, is the presiding officer.

Another Doylestown high school graduate, Clifford Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Allen, New Britain, has entered the service of his country. He is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen to have been inducted into the army.

A younger son, Darwin Allen, was inducted to the service on May 12, 1941. The older son, Clifford, was inducted the forepart of last week.

The last of the Allen brothers to have entered the service was graduated from Doylestown high school in June, 1933. Soon after his graduation he became employed in the H. & H. store, Doylestown, where he remained four years. Later he became assistant manager of a store in Boyertown, where he was engaged until he was called to the service.

Approximately 50 persons attending the meeting of the Newtown Parent-Teacher Association in the high school auditorium at Newtown were given an interesting history of the organization by Mrs. William R. Stuckert. This history was given in celebration of founders' day.

This organization, according to Mrs. Stuckert, had its beginning in 1889, but at that time it was known as a local institute with Captain William Vynkoop as its president. Later it became known as the Newtown Home and School League, and still later as the parent-teacher association. Records of the association were destroyed by fire twice.

For some years interest in the organization waned, but in 1921 it was reorganized.

Criminal Court Ends Feb. Term! Cases Are Heard

Both claimed the other "hit first." Regardless of the blows, Azimaro came out with a broken jaw and had to spend 10 days in a hospital. Sabo, employed for 13 years at the rubber plant, said that the prosecutor hit him across the ear first, and then the fight started.

The jury deliberated but a short time. Arthur M. Eastburn, Doylestown, attorney for the defendant, asked the jury to acquit his client and place the costs on the prosecutor. And that was done.

"The court has no fault to find with the verdict," Judge Keller remarked. Some of Morrisville's outstanding citizens, executives and foremen in the Morrisville plant where Sabo worked, testified that Sabo's reputation for peace and good order was "of the best." He was acquitted of aggravated assault and battery and assault and battery.

Sentence was suspended yesterday by Judge Keller in the case against Oscar Musselman, 76, of Street road, Neshaminy, charging the unlawful possession of a gallon of unlicensed liquor. Musselman was placed on probation and directed to pay the costs. He testified that the liquor had been given to him during prohibition days by a friend and had been in the house ever since. His home was searched by a Liquor Control Board agent after complaints had been received.

John J. Reilly, 51-year-old stevedore, who was sentenced last November by Judge Boyer to serve not less than four months or more than three years for operating a car after his operator's license had been suspended, was granted a parole on condition that he pay the costs. The defendant has been employed in Richlandtown.

The February term of criminal court closed Tuesday afternoon.

A jury did not believe the story of Louis Robertson, 36-year-old Negro spinach-cutter, yesterday, when they convicted him of driving while drunk on December 3, 1941 in Morrisville, when he was arrested by Chief of Police Albert Cooper.

Robertson denied that he was examined by Dr. Theodore Cohen, Morrisville osteopath, who had testified that Robertson was "extremely drunk" when he examined him. Judge Calvin S. Boyer sentenced the defendant to pay the costs and serve three months to two years in the county prison, the sentence to be computed as of December 8, 1941. The Negro testified that he was at first arrested on a technical charge over not having a driver's license and that it was not until later that he learned that he was charged with drunken driving.

Joseph A. Millen, Jr., of Kulp's Corner, charged with driving while drunk, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Keller. He was sentenced to pay the costs and a fine of $150. A prison sentence of two months to six months was suspended on condition the fine and costs be paid within a year. Millen was at first sentenced to 30 days to six months but the sentence was changed after Millen's attorney, Arthur M. Eastburn, Doylestown, had produced some additional information concerning Millen's family and small children.

Joseph Kosak, Neshaminy, a carpenter, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller yesterday to driving while drunk on the Lackawanna Trail when his car was involved in an accident with two other cars. No one was injured. Kosak was sentenced to pay the costs and serve two months to one year in the county prison. Kosak admitted that he had four drinks of whiskey at a Doylestown tap room, but told the court that he didn't think he was drunk.

Charles Kunigis, Jr., 21, Upper Black Eddy paper mill worker, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Keller to a charge of failing to stop at the scene of an accident on December 23rd, when his car struck and killed Titus Trauger, who was walking along the highway near Riegelsville.

A Coroner's jury held Kunigis for the action of the grand jury on a charge of involuntary manslaughter. The grand jury ignored the bill last week and Kunigis pleaded guilty to failing to stop at the scene of the accident.

Judge Keller fined Kunigis $150 and costs and suspended a prison sentence, after reminding the defendant that he was "a very lucky boy." Kunigis was represented by Arthur M. Eastburn, Doylestown.

"You showed very poor judgment in several instances that night," Judge Keller said to the defendant. "If you were driving 30 miles an hour on a foggy night you were going entirely too fast. You were traveling 45 feet per second and that's too fast for a foggy night."

Judge Keller ordered Kunigis' driver's license revoked for one year. After hitting Trauger, who was known as "a heavy drinker," Kunigis continued on, drove to Riegelsville, turned around and returned to the scene where he saw Trauger's body lying in the highway. Then Kunigis asked and saw what happened, and drove to his home. He was arrested later by Motor Police.

Trauger, who was walking in the same direction the defendant was driving, was carried more than 100 feet by the car from the scene of the impact where the dead man's hat was found.

EDDINGTON, Feb. 19—The World Day of Prayer will be observed locally

The theme this year is "I Am the Way."

A combined service will be held at eight p. m., in the Eddington Presbyterian Church, and the speaker will be the pastor of Langhorne Methodist Church, the Rev. Charles Yrigoyen.

The Eddington Presbyterian Church bell will be rung every hour on the hour for one full minute, from six in the morning until nine at night, for the purpose of reminding all of the Day of Prayer. ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

"It's the best play I have seen in ten years!" So wrote George M. Cohan after he had seen "Remember the Day" on Broadway, adding his tribute to that of others who saw and loved this poignant drama.

When it was announced that a film company was going to film the play, speculation was rampant about who would play the central figure.

Claudette Colbert settled all discussion when she picked "Remember the Day" from several offers as the one picture she wanted to do. Turning from recent top-flight comedy roles, this versatile actress climaxes her career with her unforgettable portrayal in this memorable love story.

BRISTOL THEATRE

Patriotism is the keynote of "All That Money Can Buy" which brings Edward Arnold and Walter Huston to the screen at the head of a notable cast.

Laid in New Hampshire a century ago, the film deals with the career of a debt-ridden young farmer who sells his soul to the devil in return for seven years of prosperity. But when the seven years come to an end, he turns in despair to the great statesman, Daniel Webster, for aid in breaking his unholy bargain.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Galley)
Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church

We rejoice, O God, that we have been called to be "living sacrifices" for Jesus Christ. Our eyes shall see for Thee; our ears shall hear for Thee; our lips shall speak for Thee; our hands shall work for Thee. We are Thine. Give unto us that food which comes from heaven, the robe of Christ's righteousness, and the assurance of an "inheritance which is incorruptible and undefiled, and that fadeth not away." Protect us in the hour of danger, and deliver us in temptation. Keep us from evil, and make of us positive forces for righteousness in the world. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Mrs. Ida Savage, Mrs. Frank Savage, Miss Blanche Savage and Wayne Savage, spent Sunday in Coatesville, with relatives and friends.

Mrs. Joseph David, Beaver street, is confined to her home by illness.

Thomas Sharp, Wilson avenue and Harrison street, is ill at his home.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Follin and family have moved from South Langhorne to Linden street.

Mr. and Mrs. Fenwick Meyers and family, Belvidere, N. J., spent the week-end with Mrs. Meyers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Louderbough, Bath street.

Mrs. Emma Jordan, Cleveland street, was a guest over the week-end of relatives at West Chester. Ralph Jordan spent the week-end with friends at Paperville and Springdale.

SATISFY THE "SWEET TOOTH" WITH HONEY AND FRESH FRUITS

By Miss Edna Stephany

Home Economics Representative. Sugar rationing seems like a hardship to many homemakers or to those with a sweet tooth, but sugar is not an indispensable item of food in the daily diet for most of us.

Sugar gives us energy to work and play, but so do breads, cereals, starchy vegetables, and dried fruits. Sugar also is used for flavor.

Nutritionists recommend about five pounds of sugar a year for a small child and 90 pounds for a very active man. This comes to almost a pound a week per person only a little more than that we are being asked to use. Children can be taught to eat foods without sugar and thus learn to like foods for their own natural flavors.

Too much sugar dulls the appetite for some of the important foods, such as vegetables, that are rich in essential vitamins and minerals. Much tooth decay has been traced to the consumption of large quantities of sugar.

Persons who do not dissolve the sugar used for their tea or coffee waste much sugar. We could accustom ourselves to less sugar by cutting down each day on the amount used in beverages or on cereals, using more fruits or simple puddings for desserts, or using less sugar in muffins or cakes.

Honey, corn syrup, maple syrup, and molasses are good sugar substitutes. Molasses provides calcium and iron besides the calories. Corn syrup has some of these two materials, but not as much as the molasses. Honey and maple syrup or sugar furnish calories but no minerals.

If you use honey for all the sugar in cakes or quick breads, foods experts recommend reducing the liquid in the recipe one-half. If honey is used for only half the sugar, reduce the liquid one-fourth. Bake honey cakes and quick breads at a moderate temperature to prevent burning and to retain the good honey flavor. Honey helps to keep the product moist longer.

Honey is as sweet as sugar, but corn syrup is only half as sweet. Corn syrup can be used in recipes instead of sugar if the liquid is reduced one-third.

tending tale of canine loyalty was revealed recently by an eastern Oregon rancher. His English setter friend having been killed by an automobile on the Oregon Trail Highway, a nameless collie stood guard over the body for more than a week. Officers investigating the vigil returned the collie to its owner, a nearby rancher, but that night the collie was again missing, having returned to the dead dog's body.

TWO FAST GAMES OF BASKETBALL ARE BOOKED FOR TONIGHT

St. Ann's and Voltz Are To Meet in First Contest

VOLTZ TEAM FAVORED

Profy Five To Be Opposed By The Fifth Ward Aggregation

Two fast games will be played to-night on the Mutual Aid floor as the Bristol Basketball League continues its fifth round of play of the second half. The first game brings together St. Ann's and the Voltz-Texaco teams, while in the second game Profy's will meet Fifth Ward.

The Voltz-Texaco team is favored to beat the Purple and Gold, which has dropped its entire quota of games in the second half. Voltz is even, with a 2 and 2 average. St. Ann's has improved in the last pair of tilts but seem to have difficulty in getting by the last quarter.

A victory for the gasoleers will bring to a halt their short losing streak of two games which saw them drop from first place to a deadlock for fourth place. The loss of little George Pollack is being felt by Paul Voltz's boys. Pollack is now in the service of the U. S. Army.

In order to stay in the running for the second half crown, the Profy team must beat the Fifth Warders. The Warders are having an in-and-out affair for the second half. Some nights they appear like champions while on other nights they drop and play as if they did not care. The Warders have two defeats for the second half and cling to the hope that Manhattan will suffer defeats in its final two games to tie up the works.

First game gets under way at eight o'clock.
